

Earlier research work

I was formerly involved with intelligent robotics research. My principle interest was in the abstraction of sensor usage to support rapid reconfiguration and reprogramming of systems with significant numbers of transducers. These were typically robotic systems, largely for assembly. Real-time sensing was one aspect of this. Force mediated behaviours was a second interest.